You were minding your own business, enjoying the quietude of your room and the tranquility of having nothing pressing on your mindwhat's happening?!" you stammer, bewildered by the sudden transformation of your surroundings.

Before you could gather your bearings, the world around you morphed entirely, the floor vanishing beneath your feet. An overwhelming sensation of weightlessness enveloped you. It was as though you were being lifted, floating amid fluffy clouds that sparkled like diamonds in the sunlight.

Then came the tingling warmth. It started at your fingertips, a soft ticklish sensation prickling through your skin, gradually covering your entire body like a comforting blanket.

You watched in astonishment as your skin began to lightenwhat was this? You reached up to touch your face, but your nose was gone, replaced by a smooth surface, and so were your ears. A wave of dizzying disbelief washed over you as thoughts flickered, your identity crumbling while new memories rushed in to fill the void.

"Why do I feeluncontrolled but filled with joy. Your body began to morph, becoming unnaturally slender, muscles shapely hidden beneath pearlescent skin.

"I... I canmassive, feathered, and glowing with pure radiance, each plume edged with a soft yellow light, yielding a sense of power and grace. They spread majestically, eclipsing the sunlit clouds and filling the air with awe as they unfurled.

"Cherish this, little one!" a soft, soothing voice sang, as you're enveloped in velvety wings, comfort cradling you like a mother swathing her child.

Then, you found your clothes morphing, a white robe cascading over your slender form, enriched by light blue and golden trimmings adorning its borders. With every inch of your new attire, you felt like royalty amidst the heavenly realms.

In every moment of this transformation, your sanity hung by a thread. Old memories clawed at your mind, threatened to resistyour mind was shifting, drifted ever so sweetly into a void of tranquil peace.

"No! Wait! My lifeyour thoughts swayed amid the clouds, memories drifting just out of reach. You were born anew among the paradise of Angels, where you would reign as one of the exalted Seraphim.

The transition ceased; confusion had faded, obliterated by a pleasurable sensation washing through your mind.

Bursting with laughter, you were surrounded by an aura of completeness.

A familiar voice teased from behind you while your surroundings quivered with laughter, "Well, look who finally decided to join paradise!"

And just like that, you realizedve uncovered in your glorious new form. "I am Angel!" you shouted in delight, the sound echoing across the shimmering clouds above.

Surrounded by the warmth and love of your fellow angels, you grinned wide, filled with an overwhelming sense of purpose. Truly, you had always been the light of Heaven.